Re: Section 8(e) Submission Regarding Lead in Paint on Children's Toys

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am writing on behalf of our client, Mattel, Inc., 333 Continental Boulevard, El Segundo, CA 90245-5012, to inform you that recent testing of a paint applied to various Fisher-Price branded toys was found to contain lead levels in excess of the 0.06% limit set by the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). On July 13, Mattel's corporate offices were notified of testing conducted in China and a quarantine of affected products was immediately imposed. The CPSC has been notified of our decision to conduct a voluntary recall of the affected products; the recall has been widely publicized. A copy of the CPSC press release is attached and is available at <http://www.cpsc.gov/cpscpub/prerel/prhtml07/07257.html>.

Although the lead levels exceeded company specifications, the recalled products are not anticipated to present a significant risk to human health or the environment. By design, children's products must withstand abuse. For quality reasons, paints used on such products are designed to tightly adhere and resist chipping. As a further safety precaution, Mattel strives to limit the use of any paint on surfaces that are easily chewed on by children. It is believed that these features, coupled with a prompt and extensive recall that has received extensive publicity, make it unreasonable to conclude that a substantial risk of injury to health or environment is present. Notwithstanding this conclusion, this information is being submitted under section 8(e) of the Toxic Substances Control Act.

The matter is continuing to be investigated and further information will be submitted as developments warrant.

Sincerely,

John B. Dubeck

Above are three examples of the recalled products

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission is charged with protecting the public from unreasonable risks of serious injury or death from more than 15,000 types of consumer products under the agency's jurisdiction. Deaths, injuries and property damage from consumer product incidents cost the nation more than $700 billion annually. The CPSC is committed to protecting consumers and families from products that pose a fire, electrical, chemical, or mechanical hazard. The CPSC's work to ensure the safety of consumer products - such as toys, cribs, power tools, cigarette lighters, and household chemicals - contributed significantly to the 30 percent decline in the rate of deaths and injuries associated with consumer products over the past 30 years

To report a dangerous product or a product-related injury, call CPSC's hotline at (800) 638-2772 or CPSC's teletypewriter at (800) 638-8270 or visit CPSC's Web site at www.cpsc.gov/talk.html. Consumers can obtain this release and recall information at CPSC's Web site at www.cpsc.gov.
